1 Adventure Overview

Adventure Element

Setting: The Court of the Silent Shepherds, a hidden gathering of the Aelinnel

Tier: II–III (can be adjusted for lower tiers)

Themes: Political intrigue, social combat, moral dilemmas

Player Count: 3–5

Estimated Play Time: 2–3 sessions

The Aelinnel are an ancient people who walk the line between life and death, maintaining balance in the world through intricate social structures and careful negotiation. Their greatest tradition is the Court of the Silent Shepherds, where elders gather to settle disputes and guide their people. But during the last gathering, an unnatural silence fell over the court. No one dares speak, and the court has frozen in time. The Aelinnel fear a curse has fallen upon their greatest tradition, one that could unravel the delicate web of alliances that holds their society together.

The adventure is structured around three major beats, each with its own clocks and challenges. The court itself is a web of alliances and rivalries, with a "Court Tension Clock" tracking the growing pressure of the silence. As the tension worsens, the court becomes more dangerous and unpredictable.

Story Beat

The Hook: The PCs are summoned to the Court of the Silent Shepherds as mediators. When they arrive, they find the court frozen in an unnatural silence. The elders stand in their places, eyes wide with fear, but no one speaks. A single elder manages to write a message: "The first to speak will break the silence but pay a price. Find the source before we are all lost."

2 Court Tension Clock

The Court Tension Clock tracks the growing pressure of the silence, affecting Position and Difficulty Values throughout the adventure.

Calm	Tense	Strained	Fracturing
(0–2)	(3–5)	(6–8)	(9–10)

- Calm (0–2 segments): The court is still functional. Position is typically Dominant or Controlled for negotiations. DV for social checks is -1.
- Tense (3–5 segments): The court shows signs of strain. Alliances begin to fray. Position is typically Controlled. DV for social checks is normal.
- Strained (6–8 segments): The court is actively breaking down. Rivalries come to the surface. Position is typically Controlled or Desperate. DV for social checks is +1.
- Fracturing (9–10 segments): The court is collapsing. Alliances shatter and violence erupts. Position is typically Desperate. DV for social checks is +2.

How the Tension Changes:

- Worsens by 1: On a miss when negotiating, when the players cause a disruption in the court, when the players fail to maintain alliances.
- Improves by 1: On a clean success when strengthening an alliance, when the players successfully uncover information about the silence, when the players perform a ritual to stabilize the court.

3 Adventure Beats

3.1 Beat 1: The Silent Court

Mechanics Integration

Court Tension Clock: Begins at Tense (3 segments)

Primary Clock: Court Stability [6]

Key Mechanics: Position, Social Combat, Alliance Tracking

The first challenge is navigating the frozen court to find the source of the silence. The court is a web of alliances and rivalries, and the silence has frozen these relationships in their most vulnerable state.

3.1.1 The Frozen Court

The Court of the Silent Shepherds is a vast chamber filled with elders standing in their places, frozen in time. Some are locked in moments of agreement, while others are caught in the heat of argument. No one speaks, and no one moves.

- Position: Controlled (the players have time to observe)
- DV: 3 (pressured; the silence is unnatural)
- Skill: Insight (to read the court) or Lore (to understand Aelinnel customs)
- Effect: Standard (understanding the court's structure)

Story Beat

Story Beat: If the players fail, the Court Tension worsens by 1 and the GM spends 1 SB to create a complication (e.g., a frozen moment of conflict begins to play out, or an elder's expression changes to one of accusation).

3.1.2 The Web of Alliances

The Aelinnel court is held together by a delicate web of alliances. Each elder has connections to others, and these connections are now frozen in their current state.

- Position: Controlled (the alliances are still intact)
- DV: 3 (pressured; the alliances are vulnerable)
- Skill: Insight (to map the alliances) or Presence (to navigate them)
- Effect: Standard (mapping the court's political structure)

The players can create an Alliance Map as they explore the court:

- +1 per successful insight check
- +2 per elder who communicates through writing or gesture
- +0 if the elder is part of a rival faction

When the map is complete (6 segments), the players understand the court's political structure and can identify potential allies.

Story Beat

Story Beat: On a clean success, the players identify a potential ally—Elder Lysara, who has been trying to communicate through subtle gestures. She reveals that the silence began when the High Shepherd entered the court chamber.

3.1.3 The Frozen Moments

As the players move through the court, they encounter moments frozen in time—arguments, agreements, betrayals. Interacting with these moments can provide information but may also trigger consequences.

- Position: Controlled (the moments are stable) or Desperate (if the moment is volatile)
- DV: 3 (pressured; the moments are fragile)
- Skill: Insight (to understand the moment) or Presence (to influence it)
- Effect: Limited (gaining information from the moment)

Story Beat

Story Beat: If the players successfully interact with a frozen moment, they gain insight into the court's politics or the nature of the silence. On a miss, the Court Tension worsens by 1 and the GM spends 1 SB to create a complication (e.g., the moment "unfreezes" briefly, causing a scene of conflict that quickly freezes again).

3.2 Beat 2: The Unspoken Price

Mechanics Integration

Court Tension Clock: Depends on previous actions (starts at Tense or Strained)
Primary Clock: Unspoken Price [8]
Key Mechanics: Position, Social Combat, Price Mechanic

The next challenge is breaking the silence. According to Aelinnel lore, the first to speak will break the silence but at great cost. The players must find a way to break the silence without paying too high a price.

3.2.1 The Silence Mechanic

The silence is not just the absence of sound—it is a magical force that prevents speech. Any attempt to break the silence requires a price.

- Position: Controlled (the silence can be broken) or Desperate (if the court is unstable)
- DV: 4 (hard; the silence is powerful)
- Skill: Presence (to break the silence) or Lore (to understand the price)
- Effect: Standard (breaking the silence)

Story Beat

Story Beat: If the players break the silence, the Court Tension improves by 1, but the GM spends 2 SB to determine the price (see below).

3.2.2 The Unspoken Price

The price for breaking the silence is unique to each speaker and is determined by the GM based on the character's background, relationships, and current situation.

- Minor Price (1 SB): A temporary inconvenience (e.g., loss of a minor asset, a day of silence, a minor physical change)
- Moderate Price (2 SB): A significant but reversible cost (e.g., loss of an asset, a relationship damaged, a temporary condition)
- Severe Price (3 SB): A major irreversible cost (e.g., loss of a talent, a permanent relationship change, a major condition)
- Catastrophic Price (4+ SB): A world-altering cost (e.g., loss of identity, betrayal of a core value, permanent exile)

The GM should determine the price based on the character's current situation and the narrative needs of the story.

Story Beat

Story Beat: When a character breaks the silence, the GM spends 2 SB from the Unspoken Price Clock to determine the cost. The remaining SB in the clock determine how much control the character has over the price (e.g., 2 SB remaining might allow the character to choose between two prices).

3.2.3 The Unspoken Price Clock

The Unspoken Price Clock [8] tracks the players' attempts to break the silence:

- -1 per successful attempt to break the silence
- +1 per failed attempt to break the silence
- +2 if the player chooses to pay a higher price to gain an advantage
- -2 if the Songweaver Runekeeper sings to break the silence

When the clock reaches 0, the silence is broken and the price is paid. When it reaches 8, the court is beyond saving and the silence becomes permanent.

Story Beat

Story Beat: If the players can reduce the clock to 0 without reaching 8, they break the silence with minimal cost. If they reach 8, the silence becomes permanent and the court collapses.

3.3 Beat 3: The Shepherd's ReturnMechanics Integration

Court Tension Clock: Depends on previous actions (starts at Tense or Strained)

Primary Clock: Shepherd's Will [10]

Key Mechanics: Songweaver Runekeeper, Position, Social Combat

The final challenge is restoring the court. The silence was caused by the High Shepherd's absence, and only by restoring the Shepherd's presence can the court be saved.

3.3.1 The Absent Shepherd

The High Shepherd, leader of the Aelinnel, has been missing since the silence began. The players must find where the Shepherd has gone and bring them back to the court.

- Position: Desperate (the Shepherd's absence is critical)
- DV: 4 (hard; the Shepherd is hidden)
- Skill: Insight (to find the Shepherd) or Lore (to understand the Shepherd's nature)
- Effect: Standard (locating the Shepherd)

Story Beat

Story Beat: On a success, the players find the Shepherd in a hidden chamber, trapped in a vision of the court's past. On a partial success, they find the chamber but the Shepherd is beyond immediate reach, and the Court Tension worsens by 1.

3.3.2 The Shepherd's Vision

The High Shepherd is trapped in a vision of the court's past, reliving a critical moment in Aelinnel history. To free them, the players must navigate the vision and convince the Shepherd to return.

- Position: Desperate (the vision is unstable)
- DV: 5 (extreme; the vision is powerful)
- Skill: Presence (to convince the Shepherd) or Insight (to understand the vision)
- Effect: Great (freeing the Shepherd)

The vision has a Vision Stability Clock [6]:

- -1 per successful interaction with the vision
- +1 per failed interaction
- +2 if the players cause damage to the vision

When the clock reaches 0, the vision stabilizes and the Shepherd is freed. When it reaches 6, the vision collapses, and the Shepherd is lost.

3.3.3 Restoring the Court

With the Shepherd returned, the players must restore the court to its proper function. This requires:

- Position: Controlled or Desperate (depending on the court's state)
- DV: 4 (hard; the court is damaged)
- Skill: Presence (to lead the court) or Lore (to understand Aelinnel customs)
- Effect: Great (restoring the court)

Story Beat

Story Beat: Each time the players successfully restore an aspect of the court, the Court Tension improves by 1. On a miss, the Court Tension worsens by 1 and the GM spends 2 SB to create a major complication (e.g., an alliance shatters, a rival faction gains power).

3.3.4 The Shepherd's Will Clock

The Shepherd's Will Clock [10] tracks the restoration of the court:

- -1 per successful restoration attempt
- +1 per failed restoration attempt
- -2 if the Shepherd leads a successful restoration
- +0 if using the Songweaver's song to stabilize the court

When the clock reaches 0, the court is restored and the Aelinnel are saved. When it reaches 10, the court collapses, and the Aelinnel lose their way.

4 NPCs

4.1 The High Shepherd

- Description: The leader of the Aelinnel, a figure of great wisdom and authority. They have been missing since the silence began.
- Role: The key to restoring the court. They are trapped in a vision of the court's past.
- Secret: They entered the vision willingly, seeking a solution to a future crisis, but became trapped by the silence.

4.2 Elder Lysara

- Description: An elder who has been trying to communicate through subtle gestures. She is a member of the Songweaver path.
- Role: The players' primary ally in the court. She provides crucial information about the silence.
- Secret: She knows the Songweaver Runekeeper can sing to break the silence without paying a price, but she fears the cost to the court.

4.3 The Rival Factions

The court is divided into several factions, each with their own agendas:

- The Pale Shepherds: Traditionalists who believe the court must remain unchanged.
- The Songweavers: Reformers who believe the court must adapt to survive.
- The Silent Watch: A secret faction that has been manipulating the court from the shadows.

Each faction has its own leader and network of alliances within the court.

5 Adventure Conclusion

The adventure has three possible conclusions, depending on the players' actions:

5.1 Success: The Court Restored

If the players restore the court and return the Shepherd, the silence is broken and the court functions once more. The Aelinnel are saved, and the court continues as their guiding tradition.

The players receive:

- A Seal of the Court (a minor asset that can temporarily stabilize social situations)
- A Court Favor (a one-time +2 to any social roll)
- A Song of the Shepherds (a minor talent that allows the player to sing to resolve social conflicts)

The Court Tension Clock resets to Calm, and the court becomes a place of stability for the players in future adventures.

5.2 Partial Success: The Court Weakened

If the players restore the court but at great cost, the silence is broken but the court is weakened. The Aelinnel survive, but the court is less effective as a governing body.

The players receive:

- A Seal of the Court (a minor asset that can temporarily stabilize social situations)
- A Court Favor (a one-time +2 to any social roll)
- A Fractured Alliance (a minor asset that can be used to manipulate court politics, but with a risk of worsening the Court Tension)

The Court Tension Clock resets to Tense, and the court remains a place of political maneuvering that requires constant attention.

5.3 Failure: The Court Lost

If the Court Tension Clock reaches Fracturing and the Shepherd's Will Clock fills, the court collapses. The Aelinnel lose their way, and the silence becomes permanent. The players must make a final Presence check (DV 5) to escape the collapsing court. If they succeed, they escape with their lives but the Aelinnel court is lost forever. If they fail, they are trapped in the silence, forever frozen in a moment of time.

6 Fate's Edge Mechanics Integration

Mechanics Integration

Songweaver Runekeeper Integration: The adventure is designed to showcase the Songweaver path. Only a Songweaver Runekeeper can sing to break the silence without paying the price.

6.1 Songweaver Runekeeper

A Songweaver Runekeeper has special abilities related to the court:

- Song of Breaking Silence: Can sing to break the silence (DV 3, Controlled/Standard), without paying a price.
- Song of Stability: Can sing to stabilize the court (DV 3, Controlled/Standard), improving the Court Tension by 1.
- Song of the Shepherd: Can sing to strengthen the Shepherd's presence (DV 4, Controlled/Standard), reducing the Shepherd's Will Clock by 1.

Obligation: Each time a Runekeeper uses their abilities, they mark 1 Obligation to the Songweaver Patron. If they exceed their Obligation Capacity (Spirit + Presence), they immediately take 1 Fatigue.

6.2 Position and Effect

The frozen court creates dynamic Position changes:

- Dominant: When the players have a moment to prepare or find a stable position (e.g., when they have an ally's support).
- Controlled: The default state in most interactions.
- Desperate: When the court is unstable or the players are in danger (e.g., when a frozen moment threatens to shatter).

6.3 Social Combat

In Fate's Edge, social combat is handled through Position and Effect mechanics:

- Dominant: The player has the upper hand in the negotiation.
- Controlled: The negotiation is balanced.
- Desperate: The player is at a disadvantage in the negotiation.

The outcome of social interactions determines the state of alliances and the Court Tension.

6.4 Story Beats and Boons

- Story Beats: The court generates SB through the tension of the silence. Each time the Court Tension worsens, the GM gains 1 SB. The GM should spend SB on complications related to the court's politics.
- Boons: Players earn Boons for meaningful failures (e.g., failing to break the silence but learning its nature). They can spend Boons to improve their Position or to reduce the cost of breaking the silence.

Design Note

This adventure was specifically designed to capture the political intrigue and social maneuvering of Vampire: The Masquerade while emphasizing Fate's Edge's narrative flexibility. The frozen court creates dynamic social challenges that require strategic thinking, while the Court Tension Clock and alliance mechanics add narrative consequences that go beyond mere combat. The adventure is designed so that players who focus on understanding the court's politics and breaking the silence with minimal cost will have the best chance of success, reflecting Fate's Edge philosophy of "narrative first, mechanics serving the story."

7 Adaptation Notes for GMs

7.1 For Vampire: The Masquerade Fans

This adventure preserves the political intrigue and social combat Vampire fans love while adding narrative depth through the Position and Effect system. The frozen court creates dynamic social challenges that require tactical thinking, and the adventure includes clear social mechanics:

- Political Intrigue: The court is a web of alliances and rivalries that the players must navigate.
- Social Combat: Replaced with Position mechanics for negotiations, with clear stakes and consequences.
- Bloodlines as Paths: Aelinnel paths like the Pale Shepherd or The Songweaver replace bloodlines, with similar themes and abilities.

7.2 Scaling for Higher Tiers

For Tier III+ characters:

- Increase the DVs by 1 for all checks.
- Increase the size of the clocks by 2 (e.g., Court Stability [8] instead of [6]).
- Add a second rival faction or a more powerful variant.
- The Unspoken Price mechanism gains additional complexity (e.g., prices now have narrative consequences that echo through the campaign).

8 Conclusion

The Silent Court of the Aelinnel is an adventure that captures the political intrigue and social maneuvering of Vampire: The Masquerade while embracing the narrative flexibility of Fate's Edge. The frozen court creates dynamic challenges that require both strategic thinking and narrative creativity, and the Court Tension Clock ensures that every action has consequences that ripple through the adventure.

The adventure ends with a moment of triumph—not through violence, but through understanding and restoration. This reflects Fate's Edge's core philosophy: that narrative comes first, and mechanics exist to serve the story.

"In the court, silence is the loudest sound of all. The moment you speak, you change the world."
